FRENCH SEE REPARATIONS ENDANGERED BY RUSS PACT

Poincare Demands Inquiry By Commission

U. S. APATHETIC

Official Washington Hints At "Trade Jealousy"

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, April 19.—M. Poincare has given instructions that the Russo-German Treaty shall be brought before the Reparations Commission as the terms of it threaten to deprive the Reparations fund of portion of the 15 sources to which it is entitled under the Versailles Treaty. He has also requested the Allied Governments to support the French in bringing the Treaty before the Conference of Ambassadors with a view to ascertaining any general infringements of the Treaty of Versailles.

M. Poincare has instructed M. Barthou to cease to co-operate regarding Russian affairs if the Russians should insist on inserting, in the agreement with the Allies, clauses similar to those included in the Treaty with Germany which, it is considered, violate the Cannes conditions.

It is reported from Genoa that Dr. Walther Rathenau, on being questioned by Mr. Lloyd George regarding the assertion that British Delegation officials were informed beforehand regarding the Russo-German Treaty, explained that he had said something rather vague to one of the British experts, but acknowledged that he did not officially ask him to communicate the statement to the British Government. Mr. Lloyd George was consequently totally unaware of the German action.

U. S. ATTITUDE

(China Press Service)

Washington, April 19.—While nothing official has been issued as yet, it is stated that President Harding and his cabinet favor the acceptance of the Russo-German pact as "fait accompli," despite the fulminations against it that have been received here from France and Great Britain.

Officials of the State Department are of the opinion that the Allies who now object are doing so only because of jealousy of the premier position it gives Germany in the markets of Russia, and put the whole outburst against it as due to trade rivalry alone.

It is hinted in official circles that the Germans merely stole a march on the Allies who were seeking to force the Soviet delegates to conclude a pact with them that would in a measure shut Germany out from the full intercourse with Russia that she always has enjoyed. The Germans, it is reported, got wind of this and determined to get there first if there was any possibility of regaining their former markets.

It is pointed out here that even if the Allies force Germany to cancel the agreement, the prestige of having been the first nation to give official recognition to the Soviets remains with Germany no matter what she is compelled to do under duress.

MAY CANCEL PACT

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, April 19.—A semi-official telegram anticipates the speedy closing of the whole Russo-German incident in consequence of a meeting between Mr. Lloyd George and Dr. Wirth at which the Premier is understood to have intimated that the exclusion of Germany would only be removed if the offending Treaty were torn up. Dr. Wirth seemed amenable to this alternative, to which France also was agreeable.

The message states that the Germans are now seeking a formula for renouncing the Treaty, although Dr. Rathenau is somewhat hostile to this. Prompt repercussions in Paris is revealed by M. Tardieu writing to M. Poincare promising to lodge an interpellation when the Chamber reassembles unless France withdraws from the Conference in conformity with M. Poincare's promise to the Chamber on April 1, that France would resume her liberty of action if the peace treaties were brought up at the Genoa Conference.

CHINA TRADE ACT CARRIES INCOME TAX EXEMPTION

Senate And House Conferees Approve Measure Cable Message States

With the income tax exemption also included the China Trade Act, so long sought by American commercial men in the Orient and aimed to put American firms on an equal footing with those of other nationals, has been approved by the Senate and House conferees, according to a cable message received yesterday by the American Commercial Attache, Mr. Julian Arnold.

According to the word received here the act has gone through practically as desired by Americans here, with the exception of a few minor reservations. The inclusion of the income tax feature means that American firms operating in China will not be liable to such taxes in the future.

Lady Astor In N. Y. On Visit; Hopes U. S. Will Help Europe

(China Press Service)

New York, April 19.—Lady Astor arrived here today. Her husband Viscount William W. Astor accompanied her.

Lady Astor was greeted by scores of friends and admirers. A crowd of newspaper photographers fought for desirable positions.

She said that she had no special mission and did not intend to tell American statesmen what to do. She said that American influence was needed to put things right in Europe.

Asked whether Europe should not straighten out her own affairs before aid from America comes, she said:

"It seems to me that when a house is afire this wise neighbor would help put out the fire."

Cancer Research Fund Gets $100,000

(Reuter's Service)

London, April 20.—The 100,000 dollars offered by Lord Atholstan for cancer research goes to the Imperial Cancer Research Fund, London.

It may be recalled that this, Lord Atholstan's second offer, arose from suggestions that he should divert his offer of 100,000 dollars to cancer research work instead of as a reward for the discoverer of a cure. Lord Atholstan cabling to the Earl of Athol from Montreal abiding by the terms of his previous gift, but donating an additional 100,000 dollars for the purpose suggested.

TARIFF EXPERTS BEGIN BUSINESS; ADOPT AGENDA

Fourteen Nations Are Represented At Confab To Increase Rate

Representatives of 14 countries attended the second meeting of the Tariff Revision Commission yesterday afternoon at the Chinese Chamber of Commerce.

Admiral Tsai Ting-kan, head of the Chinese Commission, presided and was supported by his staff and delegates from Great Britain, the United States, France, Italy, the Netherlands, Japan, Denmark, Brazil, Norway, Sweden, Belgium, Portugal and Spain.

The resolution to follow the agenda used at the tariff revision in 1918 proposed by Admiral Tsai was adopted, while the other resolutions, proposing to make use of the prices reigning during the six months ending March 31 as the basis for the determination of the tariff rate was postponed pending instructions from the various foreign governments.

A discussion took place over the second proposal, to which the Japanese delegation expressed disagreement. Extensive explanation to the proposal was given by the Chinese delegation for taking this period as the suitable time for the determination of the rate.

American Seamen Given Sentences

On complaint of Capt. Gerard P. January of the steamer Key-stone State of the Admiral Line, which arrived here yesterday from Seattle, three members of the crew were brought into the Court of U. S. Commissioner F. J. Schuhl yesterday and pleaded guilty to charges of drunkenness. They are Donald Charles, Warren Whitaker and Paul Halls.

After fines of $10 had been imposed upon Charles and Whitaker the Court learned that both men had been punished aboard ship and when Captain January expressed willingness to take back these two men the fines imposed by the Commissioner were remitted. Captain January said Halls' offenses had been particularly flagrant and he said Halls could not return to the ship. A sentence of 30 days imprisonment was imposed in his case.

WU AWAITS ARRIVAL OF HIS AIDES

Fengtien Warlord's Son, Commanding Part Of Mukden Army, Passes Tientsin; Chang's Terms For Settlement On Way To Capital

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, April 20.—It is reported that the Tientsin-Pukow line has been cut and traffic interrupted near Teh-chow. No details are yet to hand.

The rival military preparations continue but there have been no important developments.

As part of the proposed mediation it is now proposed that Generals Chang Tso-lin and Tsao Kun should meet at Tientsin and talk over the situation.

General Wu Pei-fu's inactivity is generally ascribed to his desire to await the arrival of General Feng Yu-shiang from Shensi with his troops, who are on their way to Cheng-chow.

Tientsin, April 20.—Yesterday afternoon's mail-train for Shanghai found the Tientsin-Pukow line cut and, being unable to proceed, returned to Tientsin this morning. Today's trains are not running to Nanking.

Up to the present, about 75 Fengtien troops-trains have entered Chihli, of which over 60 passed Tientsin on to the Tientsin-Pukow line. Among the troops is General Chang Tso-lin's son, General Chang Hsueh-liang.

(Staff Correspondent of The China Press)

Peking, April 20.—General Chang Ching-hai, who went to Mukden as the personal representative of President Hsu Shih-chang to learn the views of General Chang Tso-lin, is returning to Peking under armed escort. The terms, as submitted by Chang, follow:

1. The restoration of Liang Shih-yi as premier.
2. The appointment of Chang Hsun, the monarchist, as Inspector-General of Kiangsu, Anhui and Kiangsi.
3. Clemency to be given to Dr. Sun Yat-sen and all other political offenders.
4. The calling of a unification conference at Tientsin.
5. The retirement of Wu Pei-fu from the office of the Deputy Inspector-General of Chihli, Shantung and Honan.
6. The appointment of Chang Ching-hai as Wu's successor and of Chang Hsueh-liang, the son of the Mukden Warlord, as Commander-in-Chief of the Peking Gendarmerie.

Chang Explains His Aims In Talk With Minister Schurman

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, April 17.—Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, American Minister, who has just returned from a 50 days tour during which he covered 5,000 miles and visited every treaty port in China, was entertained by General Chang Tso-lin while at Mukden. In the course of several speeches made at the various functions General Chang fully outlined his plans which are wholly concerned with the question of the reunification of China.

It is his aim, the Mukden warlord says to bring about reunification without force if possible, but, if necessary, he will use force for the elimination of Wu Pei-fu who he believes to be the only outstanding obstacle to a united China. He is planning to bring a total of 70,000 troops south of the Great Wall and with potential force directed against General Wu to carry out his plans for union and co-operation of every party in China including that of Dr. Sun and the Southern Government.

General Chang expects to call a reunification conference within one month to which will be invited representatives from all over China and from every walk of life, the conference to be held at Tientsin or some such city. It will be the purpose of this conference to devise ways and means for China's unification and to take up questions of government and the possible adoption of a new constitution of the definite completion of the partially drawn up document of the Republic.

Feverish Preparation For Eventualities Under Way

CHI IS NEUTRAL

Both Tuchun And Civil Governor Deny Emnity

The interruption of the Tientsin-Pukow Railway and the feverish preparation for eventualities in both this province and Chekiang marked the outstanding developments in the Pongtlen-Chihli war situation as far as local interest is concerned.

The interruption of the line took place south of Tientsin and north of Tsinanfu. The express and mail trains could only run as far as Tsinanfu yesterday and the through passengers who left Shanghai on the Shanghai-Nanking Railway yesterday morning returned to this city last night. Much movement of troops was seen in the cities along the railway, according to the passengers.

In reply to the appeal of the Kiangsu and Chekiang gentry, Tuchun Chi Shih-yuan and Civil Governor Wang Hu of Kiangsu yesterday telegraphed to the signatories of the appeal, denying that there is any enmity between them and Lu Yung-shang of Chekiang and that rumors of a pending clash between the two provinces were absolute groundless. Chi stated that in case of an armed clash between the Mukden and Chihli cliques, he will remain neutral and give protection to the life and property of each and every citizen within his jurisdiction.

Lu, however, is still silent.

Dr. Michaelis, Ex-German Chancellor, Says Teuton Students Have Hard Time

By Elsie McCormick

THAT the one hope for the future peace of the world lies in the Christianity of ordinary individuals and not in treaties or diplomacy is the opinion of Dr. George Michaelis, Chancellor of Germany in 1917 and Food Controller during the first three years of the war. Dr. Michaelis leaves Shanghai this morning en route to America by way of Japan, after having attended the world conference of the Student Christian Federation in Peking.

A man of simple manners, without a touch of Prussian bombast, Dr. Michaelis bears no resemblance to the popular conception of a German chancellor. There is a weariness in his face and voice that disappears only when he speaks of the students or when references to the sufferings of Germany bring out a brief flash of the ex-chancellor's fighting spirit.

"Let us not talk of the next war," Dr. Michaelis said, when asked if further international clashes seem inevitable. "My great hope is that the Christian people of the world—not necessarily the organized churches, but the living members of such churches—will create such a mighty force of public opinion that another war will be impossible. I have much faith in the power of Christian students, so much that I came to China in order to attend the recent conference."

GERMAN STUDENTS

"The students of Germany are fighting for education under conditions that prosperous America would find incomprehensible. Eighty percent of the German university students are actually trying to subsist on a food allowance that science has shown to be entirely insufficient. Fourteen percent of them are afflicted with tuberculosis. A considerable proportion spend alternate years in the mines and fields in order to get money for their education. The middle class families, from whom most of the students are drawn, suffered most as the result of the war and are practically all in a condition of severe poverty. I am proud to say that despite the handicap of insufficient food, inadequate clothes and the necessity of doing hard work, the German students are running full time and that there is practically no unemployment, but prices are frightfully high and the knowledge that the labor is all for our enemies and not for ourselves takes the heart out of the workers. Long practice during the war in keeping old fabrics neat and making them hang together gives our people that appearance of being well-dressed that has deceived so many travelers. We who have had experience know, however, the struggle that many of the so-called prosperous are having to keep even fairly presentable."

Asked about the strength of communism in the German Republic, Dr. Michaelis said that its power is rapidly dwindling away. "When there is nothing to distribute, communism cannot be active," he stated. "When taxes are taking

FLEMING ASKS HIGH COURT TO GIVE HIM RE-HEARING

Copy Of Ruling Handed Down Against Him Received Here

MAY GO HIGHER

If Petition Is Denied Case To Go To U. S. Supreme Court

Application for a re-hearing has been filed by Mr. William H. Fleming in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Ninth District, which recently handed down a ruling adverse to him and affirmed a sentence of six months imprisonment for contempt of court that was imposed in the U. S. Court for China by Judge C. S. Lobingier on July 28 last. The text of the higher court's decision on the appeal that Mr. Fleming took from the judgment in the contempt case was received in Shanghai yesterday.

The fact that a re-hearing has been asked for in the Appellate Court was confirmed by Mr. Fleming last night and he said in the event that this court denies a re-hearing of the case it then will be taken to the United States Supreme Court.

STAYS ACTION
The application for a re-hearing in the Circuit Court of Appeals will have the effect of a stay of execution in the contempt proceedings. Mr. Fleming said, as no mandate in the case can be issued until the Appellate Court acts upon the petition for re-hearing of the case. Therefore any action in connection with the case here in Shanghai is delayed indefinitely.

Mr. Fleming's appeal was heard before United States Circuit Judges Gilbert, Ross and Hunt, who compose the U. S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth District. The decision, which was written by Judge Gilbert and assented to by the other two judges, was handed down on March 27.

The ruling reviews the circumstances of the hearing of the charge of criminal libel against Mr. Fleming in the U. S. Court for China last July at which the contempt proceedings developed. Details of the affidavit which Mr. Fleming read in open court at that time and which formed the basis of the contempt charges are set forth in the ruling.

THE RULING

The ruling, under the signature of Circuit Judge Gilbert, follows: On July 28, 1921, the Assistant United States Attorney for the District of China filed in the court below an information charging the plaintiff in error, who will hereinafter be designated the defendant, with the offense of criminal libel. When called upon to plead to the information the defendant, who was an attorney licensed to practice in the court below, filed a petition and motion for change of venue, and an affidavit in which certain allegations of fact were verified by his own oath. Among the allegations therein contained are, in substance, the following: That the judge of the court below was prejudiced against the defendant and in favor of the complaining witness in the criminal charge, that the proceeding against the defendant was instituted by said complaining witness with the connivance, consent and assistance of the said judge, that said judge was a party to the prosecution and directly interested therein, that the said judge was a party to a crime of embezzlement, committed by one Earl B. Ross, on or about January 27, 1919, that the defendant had recently filed with the Department of State in Washington charges of official misconduct against the said judge, that the said judge conspired with others to obstruct and impede the investigation of said charges had caused a meeting of the Far Eastern American Bar Association to be called in London at said meeting to slander and defame the defendant and procure the appointment of a committee to investigate his professional conduct, that the said judge and his co-conspirators well knew that there was nothing in the defendant's conduct which should be the subject of investigation, that the purpose was to injure and defame him, and to conceal the connection of said judge and his co-conspirators with the said crime of embezzlement, and that the said judge at the said meeting of the Bar Association falsely, maliciously and with intent to injure and defame the defendant made certain charges against the defendant.

The motion and affidavit were read in open court, and thereupon the court called upon the defendant to show cause why he should not be punished for direct contempt committed deliberately, openly and intentionally in the presence of the court. The defendant asserted that he was justified by law in presenting his motion and affidavit. After hearing the defendant at some length in his oral defense of the charge of contempt, the court, among other things, observed: "So far as the statements in regard to myself are concerned, they are absolutely false and the product of a diseased imagination." The court found that the defendant's conduct was a direct contempt committed in the presence of the court, deliberately, intentionally and with premeditation, and adjudged the defendant guilty of contempt of court, and sentenced him to imprisonment for six months.

It is contended that the defendant was within his rights in presenting to the court below the motion for a change of venue on the ground of the bias and prejudice of the judge together with a supporting affidavit setting forth the facts and that to do so and to read the said papers in open court was not contempt of court, citing the decision of this court in Tjosevig v. United States, 255 Fed. 5. In the case so cited we held that Section 21 of the Judicial Code was not applicable to a territorial court of the United States, but in view of the recognition by Congress of the propriety of the proceeding provided for in that section we reached the conclusion that notwithstanding that there was no provision of law whereby a judge of a territorial court could be disqualified by reason of bias or prejudice to sit in any pending case, it was not contempt per se to make application in respectful language and in a respectful manner to such a judge before whom a case was pending requesting that another judge try the case. That conclusion was influenced by the fact that in the Territory of Alaska a judge who deems himself disqualified to sit in any case may call in another judge of the Territory to try the case.

But in the case at bar the defendant was well aware that there was no court to which the case could be transferred and that no other judge could be called in to hold the United States Court for the District of China. He knew that to present such a motion was at best to perform an idle act. In addition to that the motion and the accompanying affidavit were not only disrespectful but were scandalous, insulting, libelous and contemptuous. They were a direct affront to the court and their tendency was obviously to obstruct the administration of justice. In such a case no formal charge, or citation, or answer is required. A summary inquiry and a record of the finding and punishment are all that are necessary to constitute due process of law. Ex parte Terry, 128 U. S. 287; Savin, Petitioner, 131 U. S. 267; Brown v. United States, 196 Fed. 351.

But the defendant contends that the proceeding lacked due process of law in that no proof was taken of the truth of the charges contained in his affidavit. In order to punish the defendant's contempt it was not necessary to take the testimony of witnesses to show that the charges made by the defendant were untrue. The punishment was lawfully imposed in the exercise of the court's power to preserve its dignity and decorum in the administration of justice. But if, indeed, the court was required to hear proof that the charges were wanton and unsubstantiated by fact, the record shows that upon a hearing held a few days later on the defendant's motion for reduction of the punishment, and consequently while the contempt proceeding was still pending, the court below in denying the motion took into consideration several affidavits which were filed and in which were denied all the charges which the defendant had made against the judge of the court.

It is contended that the court below was without jurisdiction to impose a sentence of imprisonment for six months; that the only power vested in that court to punish for contempt was that which was given to Consuls by the Act of Congress of June 22, 1860, Revised Stat. Sec. 4104. That statute limited the authority of consuls in punishing for contempt to a fine of $50 and imprisonment for twenty-four hours. The United States Court for China was created by the Act of June 30, 1906, (34 Stat. 814). Section 1 of the Act gives to the court "exclusive jurisdiction in all cases and judicial proceedings whereof jurisdiction may now be exercised by United States Consuls and Ministers." except in so far as the said jurisdiction is qualified by section two of this Act." Section 2 qualifies Section 1 by reserving to the Consuls of the United States in China jurisdiction in civil cases where the amount in controversy does not exceed $500, and in criminal cases where punishment may not exceed a fine of $100 or imprisonment for sixty days, or both, but provides that from all judgments of the Consular Courts an appeal may be taken to the United States Court for China.

Section 4 contains the provision which the defendant herein relies upon. It reads: "The jurisdiction of said United States court, both original and on appeal, in civil and criminal matters, and also the jurisdiction of the Consular Courts in China, shall in all cases be exercised in conformity with said treaties and the laws of the United States now in force and reference to the American Consular Courts in China."

But that provision is limited and controlled by the following: "But in all cases when such laws are deficient in the provisions necessary to give jurisdiction or to furnish suitable remedies, the common law and the law as established by the decisions of the courts of the United States shall be applied by said court in its decisions and shall govern the same subject to the terms of any treaties between the United States and China." That court was given, among other powers, the power to entertain appeals from Consular courts which under the Act of 1860 had been vested in the United States Minister for China. In entertaining such appeals no limitation had been placed by law upon the power of the Minister to punish for contempt. The power given to the Consuls to punish for contempt was not a suitable remedy to enforce the respect due to the United States Court for China or to compel obedience to its orders. It is a court of record having a clerk and a seal.

The Act further provided that it should have a District Attorney and a Marshal with the authority possessed by corresponding officers of District Courts in the United States, as far as might be consistent with the laws of the United States and said treaties. It provided that the Judge of the said court and the District Attorney should be lawyers of good standing and experience, and that all of said officers should be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate.

Again, by "the common law and the law as established by the decisions of the courts of the United States," the United States Court for China, even if it were not a court of the United States within the meaning of Sec. 725, Rev. Stat., had power irrespective of any statute to punish for contempt; that power being inherent in the nature and constitution of such a court. United States v. Hudson, 7 Cranch. 32; Ex parte Terry, 128 U. S. 289, 305.

Poor Response To 'National Week' In India, Says Reuter

(Reuter's Service)
Simla, April 20.—A temporary lull has occurred in the political situation. There has been only a poor response throughout the country to the much-advertised national week, both as regards hartals and collections. It is believed that the non-co-operators are seriously short of funds. The reasons for the lull include the good harvest and the impossibility of sustaining popular excitement, the internal dissensions due to Mr. Gandhi's removal and the failure to achieve tangible results, particularly with regard to the frequently promised swaraj.

election of a new parliament has not yet been stated, nor has Chang Tso-lin given out any authentic information as to whom he favors or the executive offices. His attitude is that the president should be elected according to constitutional methods and that any man so chosen would receive his support. Chang Tso-lin again reiterated that he himself had no desire for the presidential office and was solely actuated in his present activities by a sincere desire for the unification of China.

17 MILES APART
(China Press Correspondence)
Peking, April 20.—A mighty clash of the armies of General Wu Pei-fu and Chang Tso-lin now seems only a matter of hours. Last night various units of the armies drawn up in the relative positions they will hold, occupied two lines stretching between the Peking-Hankow and the Tientsin-Pukow railways. They are only 17 miles apart.

Chang Tso-lin now has possession of Yangtientsin about eighteen miles south of Tientsin. Chang also holds the Hankow line to Chang Si-shien seventeen miles from Peking.

Wu Pei-fu's forces are being shifted on the Peking-Hankow and Tientsin-Pukow lines and are now occupying a front astride these two lines from Tanghaihsien, twenty-five miles from Tientsin on the Pukow line to Liu Hsiao, thirty-five miles from Peking on the Hankow line with intermediate detachments at Hokenfu and Kuwanhsien.

Wu has superior forces over Chang Tso-lin on the Hankow line. The comparative strengths of the Pukow line are uncertain.

Wu is selling the entire revenues of the Hankow line. The Director general of the railway and staff have moved to Faoching from Peking. Civil Governor Tsao Jui is in Paoching. Chow Tze-chi has returned to Peking.

Hongkong Chamber In Annual Meeting

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Hongkong, April 20.—At the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce today, in the course of a lengthy review of the year's activities, the Chairman said: "There is a strong feeling amongst the shipping community that the Hongkong Observatory needs expansion and that, in view of the importance of Hongkong as one of the leading ports of the world, no expense should be spared in providing such equipment as is usually associated with modern observatories. I hope that the Government will take in hand at once the construction of a commercial wireless station, which would at night enable Hongkong to be in wireless touch with all the big stations and whereby during the day, communication could be kept up between Hongkong and Shanghai, Japan and Cavite and, doubtless, many other stations."

Alluding to the subject of the strike, the Chairman stated that there had been a most remarkable movement in the labor market, both skilled and unskilled. "These difficult labor conditions continue apparently without any regard for the inevitable increase in living costs, which the enhancement of wages must bring about, to say nothing of its effect on the prosperity of South China generally, in which Chinese and Europeans are equally concerned."

FUND IS GIVEN TO WIDOWS OF CHINESE POLICE

Wives Of Constables Killed While On Duty Receive Sum Of $3,073.30

Announcement has been issued that the fund raised for the widows of Chinese police constables No. 438 and 1063, who were formerly attached to Wayside Station and who were killed while in performance of their duties, amounted to the sum of $3,073.30, which includes a grant of the Municipal Council of $300.

The sum of $222.55 in cash and a native draft on Yungchenhsien for $1,300 have been turned over to the widow of Police Constable No. 438 and the sum of $152.65 in cash and a native draft on Tsinghsien for $1,400 have been turned over to the widow of Police Constable No. 1063. Besides making the grant of $300 the Municipal Council defrayed the expenses of the double funeral of the men amounting to $321.10. In addition to her part of the fund, a specific donation of $50 from the occupants of No. 168 Tonsan Road to the widow of Constable No. 1063 has been given to her.

The two constables were victims of members of the notorious gang of Wong Siu-di, who recently was sentenced to death in the Mixed Court.

Besides substantial sums contributed to the fund by both Chinese and foreigners of all the police stations of the Settlement other offerings for the fund were from the Settlement Administrative staff, $100; Superintendent of Police's staff, $15; Criminal Investigation staff and special branch, $49; Traffic Office staff, $19; Chinese and foreign staffs of the office of the Assistant Commissioner of Police, $59.76; Municipal Jail staffs, $69; Magistrate Kuan, $100; Assistant Magistrates of the Mixed Court, $35; Foreign and Chinese staffs of the Mixed Court, $86; Lien Yih Benevolent Association, $25; Mr. Zao Zeng-wo, $50; Various Chinese per Mr. Zao Zeng-wo, $155; Dr. A. NATIONAL BODY RAPSCANG FOR WAR ACTIVITIES

Demands Immediate Withdrawal Of All Mukden Forces Beyond Great Wall

Scoring Chang Tuo-lin, the Mukden chieftain, for causing the prolongation of internal war, the National Disarmament Advocating Society, a powerful organization recently launched for the limitation of armaments in China, yesterday addressed a telegraphic message to the warlord and demanded the immediate withdrawal of his entire army beyond the Great Wall.

The text of the telegram is as follows: "The political atmosphere is under high tension and no one is able at present to predict what might happen. You have transferred your forces within the Great Wall and allied yourself with outlaws of the Anfu and monarchical cliques to create turmoil in the country. Your motive is abominable.

"The cliques with which you have entangled yourself have been abhorred by the entire populace. Yet you would willfully ignore the public will and dare to act contrary to the desire of the nation. This amounts to a declaration of war against the people of the whole country.

"If you will carefully consider our national difficulties, change your policy at once and undo what you have already done; there is still a chance for you to be a hero of tactics. Otherwise, you will soon be the object of popular hatred and your fate will be at stake.

"Defeat and ruin will be the order of your destiny and you will surely repent for not having abided by the advice of your fellow-countrymen. It has been well-said that the wise must consider his own safety. The fall of the Anfu clique should be a great lesson to you! We trust you will give this your careful consideration!"

SUIT IS BROUGHT BY LADY AGAINST INSURANCE FIRM

Hearing was begun in the British Supreme Court before Judge Peter Grain yesterday of an action brought by a Chinese lady, Mrs. King Chun-kee, against the Shanghai Life Insurance Company, Ltd.

The action is on a claim for two and a half percent on the premium income of the company for the ten years following March 10, 1905. Plaintiff alleges that an agreement between her husband and the company called for such payment and that defendants have refused to account for and pay such moneys as may be due under the agreement. An accounting is asked and the payment of the amount found due.

The defense is that the plaintiff is not the legal representative of the late King Chun-kee, that the agreement was contingent upon terms which were not carried out by the plaintiff's late husband and that the deed of agreement was voided by mutual consent in June 1906.

Mr. R. G. MacDonald, for the plaintiff, outlined the case at length yesterday, after which the plaintiff was called. She stated that her husband, Mr. R. H. Parker and Mr. Wattie were previously together in the China Land and Finance Company. Mr. Parker finally refused to continue in the company and went to America. He had correspondence with the plaintiff's husband and finally returned to China, in 1904, and the Shanghai Life Insurance Co was formed.

According to counsel for the plaintiff Mr. King was obliged to do most of the work of launching the venture. By agreement each of the three directors, including Mr. King and Mr. Parker, were to receive two and a half percent of the premiums paid in, the agreement to run for ten years. Counsel stated that efforts had been made after Mr. King's death to settle the matter, an offer of Tls. 40,000 being made.

The case was adjourned until today.

NEW MEMBERS OF AMERICAN LEGION WARMLY GREETED

Beefsteak Dinner At American Club Marks End Of Drive Program Is Given

Welcome to new members of the Gen. Frederick Ward Post of the American Legion, recruited in the past month in a drive to enlarge the roll of the post, was voiced last night by Capt. W. I. Eisler, Commandant, at the beefsteak dinner which was held at the American Club. A particular interesting program of addresses and other numbers was presented in the course of the evening and this included a piano selection by Madame Pittard, who thus acquires the distinction of being the only woman in recent years to pass the portals of the American Club.

Following Captain Eisler's eloquent address Judge Cornell Franklin spoke and in the course of his remarks he took occasion to pay high tribute to the Chinese workers who went overseas to aid the allies in the war.

Adjutant J. T. Wright speaking advocated a large measure of activity on the part of members of the American Legion in athletics and sports generally. He told of plans being made for the Post's annual pilgrimage this year on Decoration Day to the grave of General Frederick Ward at Sungkiang, continuing a custom begun last year by the Post. Major Arthur Bassett, who was the Post's first Commander, and Mr. Gardiner Crane, Service Officer also spoke. Some part of the discussion of the evening was devoted to the question of the soldiers' bonus which has been before Congress and a view opposing the legislation in this connection was expressed.

One of the outstanding features of the evening was a bout with gloves between the two Hertzberg youngsters, midget boxers of 80 pounds each.

Letters of knowledge receipt of the Post's resolutions of sorrow following the death of Sir Everard Fraser were received from Mr. A. F. Garstin, Acting British Consul-General, and from Mr. O. S. Bonhove Rowe, Hon. Secretary of the United Services Association.

Arms Smugglers Are Sent To Prison For One-Year Term

Four young Chinese were sentenced to one year's imprisonment each by Assessor Jacobs and Magistrate Li of the Mixed Court yesterday for smuggling pistols into the International Settlement. Six Chinese watchmen charged with conniving in the smuggling were ordered to sign personal bonds for future good conduct, the court holding that there was not sufficient evidence to convict.

The smugglers' story tended to incriminate the watchmen. The four are said to have brought into Shanghai 36 Mauser pistols and about 8,400 rounds of ammunition, bought in Germany and brought to this port on Japanese ships. A Japanese who has been arrested and is declared to be the ringleader of the gang is being charged in the Japanese court.

Sua Manggis Rubber Co., Ltd.

The twelfth annual general meeting of the shareholders in Sua Manggis Rubber Co., Ltd., was held yesterday at 11 o'clock at the offices of Messrs. Scott, Harding & Co., secretaries and general managers, when Mr. L. J. Cubitt presided, supported by Messrs. A. K. Craddock and R. N. Truman, directors, and Mr. W. Standing, representing the secretaries. The attendance represented 7,745 shares.

The notice convening the meeting and the auditor's report having been read, the chairman said: "Gentlemen: When I addressed you last year I said that the showing for the year justified the payment of a dividend but for the very unsatisfactory outlook and it therefore behooved us to carefully conserve our funds and to exercise economy in every direction.

"This policy has been strictly adhered to during the year 1921 and your directors are thus able to present a balance sheet which shows a loss it is true, but a loss of only Tls. 8,759.57 after writing off the whole amount expended on development and making ample allowance for depreciation on buildings, machinery, furniture and water supply. These assets stand in the balance sheet at Tls. 41,450 against the manager's valuation of Tls. 960, say Tls. 53,692. The liquid assets amount in the aggregate to Tls. 23,325.41 and I may mention that the net proceeds of the stock of rubber exchequed the figure in the balance sheet by 10 percent.

Among the liabilities you will see that general reserve stands at Tls. 25,000, the same figure as last year, of which $5,000 or Tls. 4,400 is invested in Straits Settlement conversion loan and the remainder is invested in the company's undertaking.

"The position of the company shown in the accounts before you is quite sound and a gratifying feature in the report is the substantial reduction of the cost of production from 55 1/2 cents to 39 1/2. This figure will be reduced again this year, possibly by as much as 10 cents, nevertheless we are still working at a loss which if maintained at its present figure will entirely absorb the balance at credit of profit and loss a/c.

"I do not place very much reliance on estimates of output but I may say that unless further restriction is adopted or some untoward incident occurs the manager anticipates that the 1922 crop will be 192,000 lbs., that is about 10,000 lbs. more than last year.

The new factory installation enables us to produce better rubber than was possible with the small plant formerly in use. The machinery is giving satisfaction except the Niblok washer which has not come up to expectations.

having twice broken down owing to faulty design or faulty material and caused considerable loss and inconvenience to the management.

"I will now tell you about the current year's working as far as our information goes, we have received the accounts for January and February which show that on an output of 30,200 lbs. the estate cost of production was 27.82 cents per lb. Wintering had already begun and until it is over the reduced output will of course increase the cost per lb. but by the end of this month the yield will again be normal. We are now making up a small amount of crepe in our factory for a neighboring estate which during January and February brought us in about $100 a month and is a help in reducing the cost of running our factory; but we are still working at a loss of roughly $500 a month at the estate. This condition of affairs can hardly show much improvement so long as the price of rubber remains at its present level though every effort will continue to be made by our manager to introduce further economies. There is a point however where reduction in expenditure may be false economy and this fact is not being lost sight of.

"No forward contracts have been made."

The following resolutions were passed: That the report and accounts to December 31, 1921, as printed and circulated be accepted and passed. Proposed by Leslie J. Cubitt and seconded by A. K. Craddock.

That Mr. Leslie J. Cubitt be re-elected a director of this company. Proposed by R. N. Truman and seconded by A. K. Craddock.

That Messrs. Mortimer Reid and Sles be elected auditors of the company for the current financial year at a fee of Shanghai Tals 150. Proposed by Foo Ching and seconded by Leslie J. Cubitt.

BRITISH PRINCE SPENDS DAY AT JAPANESE SHRINE

Sees Beautiful Temples At Historic Nikko

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Tokio, April 20.—His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales, is today visiting the beautiful city of Nikko, 90 miles north of Tokio, of which the Japanese say: "One cannot appreciate the word 'Kekko' meaning beautiful until one has seen Nikko." The city is one of the most popular resorts in the country and attracts hundreds of visitors at all seasons of the year.

Within the immediate neighborhood are many objects and places of interest. Best of all is the famous Red Lacquer Bridge, spanning the River Daiya, which originally none but the Shogun and one travelling as a special messenger for the Emperor might pass.

A short distance from the Sacred Bridge are what the floods have left of the once numerous images of Buddha which line the bank of the river along the Gammanga-fuchi pool. The tale is told that these stone images come and go invisibly, the number never being twice the same.

JAPANESE ART

For a number of years, with orders to spare no expense, the pick of Japanese artists and artisans, gathered from all parts of the country, labored to create at Nikko a memorial worthy of the founder of the Tokugawa Shogunate, Iyeyasu, and to surround his tomb with such works of art as would leave it unrivaled. The site of the tomb of the first of the Tokugawa Shoguns, on the slope of the forest-clad mountain, itself is one of the premier beauty spots of a superbly beautiful district.

In creating the great memorial, each of the Daimyo of Japan was assessed to the limit of his capacity to pay, thus creating a rivalry among the lords of the land as to which should prove his wealth the greater by the amount of his contribution. Such a levy served a double purpose: it secured a vast fund, estimated as the equivalent of £2,500,000 for the creation of the shrine, and at the same time so depleted the treasures of the various daimyo that any thought of armed opposition to the Shogunate had to be abandoned.

In a superb setting, with an avenue of cryptomeria extending over twenty miles, and broad roads flanked with trees of all kinds are the shrines of Nikko, the beauties of which beggar description, for in them are combined magnificent carvings, mural decorations from the brushes of the greatest artists of the day, gifts from the rulers of China and Korea. Unalloyed gold was lavishly used in the profusion of gliding to be seen everywhere about the buildings, and the colors were made fast by the use of crushed gems. One of the most noted carvings about the temple is the "Three Monkeys," the "See no Evil, Speak no Evil, Hear no Evil" trio, known throughout the entire world.

BEAUTIFUL GATE

The beautiful gate known as Yomei-mon is one of the most striking pieces of wood carving in the world. It is estimated by experts that this portion of the temple alone, which has a surface of about 432 square feet, is valued at 2,400,000 yen. In this gate one of the pillars has its carving upside down. This was done, it is said, owing to the superstition that the flawless perfection of the whole structure might bring misfortune to the house of Tokugawa.

Few visitors to Nikko, either Japanese or foreign, can resist the attractions of the surrounding mountains, and most make an excursion to Lake Chuzenji, which lies in a circle of thickly wooded hills at the base of the sacred mountain of Nantai, some 3,000 feet above the level of Nikko.

The first part of the trip can be negotiated by train or motor car, but from the spot called Umagoe-shi, where in former days mountain climbers had to discard their horses, the journey must be done on foot or by riksha.

The road, for the first mile or so, skirts a mountain torrent, the bed of which is filled with mighty rocks and boulders testifying to the force of water that rushes down in flood time. As the road gets steeper, it winds up the side of a mountain clothed with a variety of trees, mostly maples, which are charming at all seasons. After reaching the top of the pass, a level walk through birch woods brings one to the giant falls of Kegon, formed by the stream that flows from the lake, and two or three hundred yards further on is the lake itself.

Kegon is the most magnificent of the many falls in this part of the country, with a total height of some 250 feet.

Chuzenji is delightfully situated and, by reason of its height above the sea, is a popular summer resort for Japanese and foreign residents, being especially favored by the Diplomatic Corps who rent the villas built along its shore.

STEAMER CATHAY TODAY BECOMES THE DIANADOLLAR

The first of the four famous Shanghai-built shipping board steamers to return to Shanghai since the four vessels were purchased by the Robert Dollar Company, the Cathay, is to be rechristened here today.

When the vessel was launched here a year ago it was sponsored by Mrs. E. S. Cunningham, wife of the American Consul-General, and was given the name of "The Cathay." After today's ceremony, however, the vessel will become a "Dollar" boat in name as well as fact following the custom of the line.

The steamer is to become the Dianan Dollar, being named after little Miss Diana Dollar, youngest daughter of Mr. Stanley Dollar. This young lady is just six months old. It is understood that the Dianan Dollar under her new name and having aboard a handsomely executed painting of her namesake will sail from Shanghai, continuing her round-the-world cruise, Saturday.

Sea-Sickness Can be Prevented!

No Drugging—No Unpleasant After-Effects.

An appreciative doctor wrote:—

"Lady—was placed under my care for the voyage home. I could not accept any responsibility as I considered she was in great danger from hemorrhage should she vomit. She had always been a very bad sailor. As a precaution she was given two capsules of 'KIRBY'S SEA-SICK CURE' immediately she went on board. We got into rough water shortly before midnight, but Lady—had an undisturbed night's rest. She took one capsule half-an-hour before dressing. She had breakfast in the dining hall, and assured me she had no sensation of nausea or sickness. Although we had rough weather for five days, and at other periods of the voyage, she was not sea-sick. There was no nausea of any kind, and the remedy produced no after-effects."

Michaelis Says German Students Have Hard Time

such a large proportion of the money even from among the so-called well-to-do, there is nothing to excite the working-men's envy. The radical movement in Germany is far less international now than it was before the war. German Socialists were sadly disillusioned when the Socialists of other countries turned against them with as much venom as the conservatives. The fact that the Socialists failed to stand together has embittered many of the former party members and turned them off into other political groups.

WAR CONDITIONS

A startling revelation concerning food conditions in Germany before the signing of the Armistice was made when the former chancellor declared that 736,000 people died of starvation from 1915 to 1918. "The Allies never learned how hard conditions really were," Dr. Michaelis said. "My work as Food Controller was the most painful task of my whole life. It virtually meant choosing what part of the population would be allowed to live and what part would be condemned to die. Before the signing of the armistice, the maximum meat ration was about a hundred grams a week and this much could be purchased only by the very well-to-do. Fresh milk was limited to children, invalids, and the aged, and nobody ever finished a meal with the feeling of having eaten enough." Turning to less bitter topics, Dr. Michaelis commented on the cleverness of Chinese students, their ability to think in international terms, and their special talent for attacking social problems. Through the Student Christian Federation, Chinese students have also offered help to the university men of Germany and their assistance has been greatly appreciated.

Dr. Michaelis will spend a short time in Japan, visiting friends that he made when stationed there in government service over thirty-five years ago, after which he and Mrs. Michaelis will proceed to the United States.

ROTH CASE CONTINUED

Hearing of new charges of having made threats to kill that were filed against Mrs. Helen Roth by her husband, Mr. L. E. Roth, opened yesterday in the court of U. S. Commissioner F. J. Schuhl and will be resumed on Saturday morning when the testimony of one witness in addition to those heard yesterday will be taken. Both Mr. and Mrs. Roth testified at considerable length at yesterday's hearing.

Albany And Shanghai Set For Baseball Game

Season's Opening On Saturday Promises First Class Sport

In spite of yesterday's rain and wet grounds, Shanghai's baseball team and the nine from the cruiser Albany are planning on the opening baseball game of the season on Saturday. The local team is practicing up strongly for their first game, and the navy men are working just as hard for their initial trial.

The navy nine has a fine organization left over from last year in Orr, Fancher, Liddy, Knearl, Howard and the rest, and with a little practice behind them are confident of a good start in the summer league.

Shanghai however with a number of old timers including Griffith, Hopkins, Jack Smith, Ellis, Maloney, S. P. Smith, Denison, Church, Art and a big squad of youngsters ready for the fray are set for a sure-enough early season test.

Saturday will see the talent of Shanghai old and new pitted against their ancient rivals, the Navy, in their opening game. Usually the local nine has won out in such opening trials and with their wealth of material this year they are confident of maintaining their record.

Practice continues daily at 5 p.m. until the opening day on Saturday.

Schedule Drawn For Olympic Games

Paris.—A complete schedule for the Olympic games of 1924 has been prepared by the French Olympic committee. Following out the determination to give all competing nations ample time to prepare for the events dates have been set for all forms of sport composing the program. The competition has been divided into three groups, consisting of winter, spring and summer games, with the opening event set for January 20 and the closing contest July 28.

The various forms of skating competition, which will inaugurate the eighth Olympiad, will continue from January 20 to February 5. The other events will be held in the following order:

Rugby football, May 3 to 18; association football, May 15 to June 1; shooting, June 28 to July 7; athletics, June 28 to July 13; fencing, June 29 to July 4; water polo, June 29 to July 4; tennis, July 6 to 13; yachting, June 24 to July 17; swimming, July 12 to 20; gymnastics, July 18 to 23; bicycle racing, July 23; track racing, July 28; boxing, July 18 to 19.

While these dates are subject to change, it is expected that future variations will be minor. Although the United States is expected to enter teams in virtually all the contests, the American athletes will be particularly interested in track and field competitions.

Clarence Demar Marathon Winner

(China Press Service) Boston, Mass., April 19.—Clarence Demar of Melrose, Massachusetts, broke the tape in front of the Boston Athletic Association Club house this afternoon two hours, eighteen minutes and ten seconds after he, with 74 others started the annual 25-mile race staged by the B. A. A. on Patriot's Day.

Demar, a veteran of many B. A. A. marathons, won the event eleven years ago when he broke Tom Longboat's long standing record. Demar's mark made them was subsequently beaten and a new record established.

The time made by Demar today cut the record 47 3-5 seconds. The race started in Ashland.

CHINESE WINS BICYCLE RACE OVER RUSSIAN

Mr. Y. T. Li won the great bicycle championship of China Monday at Peking covering the 57 kilometers in the record time of two hours and two minutes. He was closely followed by M. G. Weinglass, a Russian, who made a desperate effort to catch him in the last ten kilometers.

Twenty six contestants started, the first thirteen of whom finished inside of two hours and ten minutes, the best previous record for the course.

The favorites all failed to show. Li Hio-chun, former champion of China broke the seat of his bicycle just outside the Summer Palace and in so doing ran into one of the Belgian contestants, breaking his wheel.

A large crowd watched the start and finish outside of the Peking Hotel and the Marine Band lent gaiety to the occasion. The results were disappointing to the Europeans' hopes since four out of the first six places were won by Chinese as against only one in the last race.

Mr. Y. T. Li, the new champion of China is a schroff for the Peking Leader. His great endurance and speed are said to be due to his daily training in chasing the unfortunate debtors of this metropolitan journal. The race was held under the auspices of the Journal de Peking and was conducted in a business-like fashion without any hitches.

The racers got away promptly at 9 a.m., Berthier, the French cyclist, taking the lead. Shortly after the arrival at the Summer Palace he was passed by Y. T. Li who thereafter never relinquished the lead except for a short time.

Weinglass, the Russian, got a bad start and was a long distance behind at the turning in the Western Hills. Upon the return trip however he succeeded in making up more than a kilometer of the distance between himself and the leaders, but the effort was so great that he did not have the stamina to hold on in the final spurt. He did, however, succeed in nosing out Tsing Tsun-ming who finished third. Another Russian finished in fifth place.

Berthier was the first French contestant to finish being ninth. The Belgian team failed to place, the first to finish being de Coster. It was a startling indication of the athletic development of the Chinese cyclists since last year.

Last Spring Race Test To Be Run Tomorrow

Kiangwan Trial Will Try Best Local Talent For Spring Meet

The last test of the local racing ponies for the big spring meeting which is carded for May 1, 2, 3 and 6 will be run on Saturday next commencing at 1:15 p.m. at Kiangwan. Ponies listed for entrance in the meeting are taking their last workout for the spring meet. The trial is the final trial for the spring racing classic.

A novices and selling opens the card, followed by a steeplechase handicap, to two miles. Liability, Petersfield, Litchfield, Medina-Sidonia and The Prelate are entered, with a good race assured. In the fifth race, the Portland Plate the Hawk, from the Winsome and Hasty stable will rank as the favorite over such ponies as Litchfield, Letchfield and Tyneside.

For the tenth race a good contest promises. With Petersfield, Maresfield, Tyneide and twenty other ponies up for the ride, there is bound to be a good competition.

The rest of the racing is good class sport. Commencing at 1:15 p.m. local garages have arranged to start automobiles each minute after noon.

British Commercial Body Holds Its Annual Meeting

Chamber Hears Of Important Matters Handled During Past Year; New Committee Is Named For Ensuing Twelvemonth

The China tariff revision, judicial reform, the return of territory to China and other matters of import to Britons in this country were touched upon yesterday at the annual general meeting of the British Chamber of Commerce, held at the Shanghai Club.

The meeting was presided over by Mr. E. F. Mackay, who was supported by Messrs. W. A. Argent, A. W. Burkill, L. W. Hutton, H. W. Lester, G. W. Sheppard, G. H. Stitt, H. H. Girardet, G. N. Wilson, Mr. H. H. Fox, British Commercial Attaché, Mr. A. H. George, Secretary, E. M. Gull, and Assistant Secretary, P. Campbell. A good attendance of members was present.

The Committee was elected to serve during the ensuing year and is as follows: Messrs. W. A. Argent, C. H. Arnold, A. W. Burkill, W. H. Trencard Davis, L. W. Hutton, C. G. Humphrys, H. W. Lester, E. F. Mackay, C. G. S. Mackie, P. W. Massey, G. W. Sheppard and G. H. Stitt.

The Chairman's speech was as follows:

"I think, gentlemen, that my first duty this afternoon should be to express the very deep sense of loss which we all feel in the death of the late Sir Everard Fraser, who was Honorary President of the Chamber from the time of its inception. The late Consul-General was admired by all of us and to many he had been a close personal friend. He was untiring in his work on behalf of the British interests and Great Britain had in him one of the most able public servants which she ever sent to China. He followed the work of this Chamber with close attention and his valuable experience and knowledge were always at our disposal. I should like accordingly to propose the following resolution:

"That this the seventh Annual Meeting of the British Chamber of Commerce desires to place on record a tribute to the work on behalf of British interests of His Majesty's late Consul-General, Sir Everard Fraser, for seven years Honorary President of this Chamber."

The resolution having been seconded by the Vice-Chairman and passed, the Chairman proceeded to say:

"Before I propose the adoption of the report and accounts there are one or two aspects of our work as a Chamber on which I should like to say a few words.

CONDITIONS DIFFERENT

"In the first place, I wish to call your attention to the very considerable difference between the circumstances in which we met last and those in which we meet today. Last year the Shanghai question was still unsettled; this year the return of Tientsin to China has been agreed to. Last year we did not know what was going to happen to Weihaiwei; this year we know that it is to be handed back. Last year the territorial integrity of China and the principle of the open door were decrepit traditions; today both principles have been solemnly reaffirmed by the Washington Conference in circumstances so public as to give them new and, we hope, enduring strength. Last year there was no reason to anticipate any immediate modification in the fiscal and legal environment in which we live. Today we know that special commissions are shortly to be appointed to overhaul the import tariff and to inquire into China's judicial machinery, while in effect it has been decided to withdraw foreign post offices from China.

"In the face of these decisions it is impossible to regard the China of today as occupying in the comity of nations the position which she occupied a year ago. As a result of the Washington Conference she occupies a very greatly improved position and I have begun my remarks by pointing this out in the first place because we welcome the fact and in the second because the resolutions which this Chamber and the Associated Chambers passed in 1919 and 1920 formed part of the opinion which the delegates at the Conference consulted. Let me recall some of those resolutions to you. In regard to Shanghai we resolved that with a view to safeguarding commercial rights and securing equal trade opportunities for all, the restoration to China of the port of Tientsin was essential. In regard to the open door and the territorial integrity of China we resolved that the time had come when the policy of the open door should be reaffirmed as an essential commercial principle and that its reaffirmation should be accompanied by an international agreement for the abolition of spheres of influence.

JUDICIAL REFORM

"In regard to the reform of China's judicial system we resolved that efforts should be made to carry into effect the agreement by Great Britain to assist China in reforming her judicial system in pursuance of Article 12 of the Treaty of 1902. The arguments put forward in support of these resolutions were in due course sent home to the Foreign Office and the man who heard, read and transmitted them was specially selected to accompany the British delegation to the Washington Conference, I mean, of course, Sir John Jordan. He was constantly consulted at Washington and he had a very complete sympathy with our views.

"I think, at all events I hope, that in view of these facts you will endorse afresh the policy of your retiring committee in devoting so much time and energy to the affairs of the Associated Chambers as distinct from those of this Chamber. When I say 'as distinct from those of this Chamber' I do not, of course, imply that there is any opposition between the two. On the contrary, what is of advantage to the Association is of advantage to this Chamber and vice versa. All I mean is that in order to have an Association, and in order to make it the success which it undoubtedly is, it has been necessary for the Committee, and for the Chamber's staff, to shoulder a good deal more work than they would have been called upon to undertake if the Shanghai Chamber dealt only with the affairs of Shanghai merchants and the Tientsin and Hankow Chambers dealt only with the business directly affecting them. That used to be the case, but I think there is no comparison between the effectiveness of each organization as it was then and their effectiveness today. Each has become stronger by being united with the rest.

PIECE GOODS CONTRACTS

"Among the subjects which the Chambers have dealt with co-operatively, and in which this Chamber is especially interested, is the proposed standard Piece Goods Contract. As you know, the idea of having a standard contract originated with our Piece Goods Sub-Committee at the beginning of 1921. Negotiations in prosecution of the idea have continued steadily since then, and the landmarks in their history have been published in the Chambers' Journal. There is no necessity for me, therefore, to go over the ground again, but I may, perhaps, with advantage say a word or two in regard to the later stages.

"The Manchester and Bradford Chambers, having considered our first draft carefully, sent out an amended draft which reached us before the Piece Goods Sub-Committee on November 15; various further amendments were decided on and were sent home, while copies of Manchester's proposals were sent to the Hankow, Tientsin and Hongkong Chambers. Towards the end of February we were told by cable that Manchester and Bradford had accepted our amendments, and on March 13 last the Piece Goods Sub-Committee received confirmation of this by mail. The confirmatory letter, together with a printed redraft of the contract, were as before sent to Tientsin, Hankow and Hongkong and all three have agreed to it. Manchester will be informed accordingly, and all that will remain to be effected, as far as this Chamber is concerned, will be for our piece goods members generally to say whether they are agreeable to accepting the proposed contract or not. As our Piece Goods Sub-Committee is thoroughly representative of the trade there is every reason to think that the trade will endorse their views. And perhaps I may express the hope that the proposal to keep a register of dealers at the Chamber's offices will also be given effect.

COAST TRADE DUTIES

"Another subject of direct interest to members of this Chamber, in working on which we have had the help of other Chambers, is the rewording of Rule 1 of the Tariff. All our Chambers and the French, the Japanese and I think I may say, the American Chambers are agreed that the cost of goods that is to be landed coast in bond, should be the basis on which a valorem duty should be levied and all think that the rule should be reworded so as to make this clear. Accordingly opportunity will be taken of the present revision of the tariff to press for this.

LETTER TO CONSUL

"As regards the powers of this proposed board I will read you an extract from the letter sent to the Acting Consul-General which was as follows: 'The report enumerates amongst the powers of the proposed board power to acquire land necessary for harbor purposes, also to acquire private harbor utilities by agreement or by expropriation. 'My Committee understands this clause to mean that the board would be enabled to acquire full powers over the entire harbor including existing wharves. If they are correct in this interpretation of power would be undesirable and might tend to restrict and hamper trade.' The Chairman then dealt with the question of Yangtze Conservancy as a whole, referring to the recent invitation extended to Mr. F. Palmer, consulting engineer to the Port of London Authority, to make a survey of the river. He dealt also with the desirability of having better Customs facilities at the port of Pukow. Proceeding the chairman said: 'A word as to our relation with British Chambers of Commerce at home. All the most influential of them are as you know united in an association and our association here is affiliated with it, so that besides our connections with the Manchester and Bradford Chambers we have now a very powerful body to aid us in representing our views and helping us in our difficulties. The improvement which has taken place in cable communication with home is to no small extent a result of this co-operation, which, as time goes on, and as more and more attention is drawn to the China market, will, I think, prove a very effective and powerful factor in the maintenance and development of British interests in this country.

MARRIAGE IS LIKE A FURNACE—DON'T GO NEAR IT UNLESS YOU WANT TO BE CAUGHT IN ITS CONSUMING FIRES.

the Chinese Government would be comparatively small compared with the advantages which would be gained.

"We intend to press these views when the Tariff Revision Commission decided on at the Washington Conference assemblies and I would ask the members of this Chamber to support the Committee which they are about to elect in asking for facilities to present to the delegates to the Commission the views of the Associated Chambers on this subject."

The Chairman then proceeded to deal with the question of claims outstanding against the Chinese Government and the principles underlying the protection of British trade in the interior, passing next to the subject of trade-marks. These matters were dealt with confidentially.

HARBOR IMPROVEMENT

Proceeding the chairman said: "I hope I shall not be detaining you for a longer time than you have determined to spare if I refer briefly to one or two other subjects that have engaged our attention during the past year. Among these is the future of Shanghai Harbor. The report of the engineers was sent to us for our consideration, with special reference to the constitution of the new Harbor Board which the report recommends. A special Sub-Committee was appointed to go into the question carefully and its findings, after being considered by the Committee as a whole, were sent to the Acting Consul-General on March 27 last. The main points contained in them were published in the April issue of the Journal.

"We stated that we were in favor of the provision of a channel through the Fairy Flats, indeed that we considered the provision such a channel to be essential. We also stated that we were in favor of a mail and passenger wharf near the mouth of the Whangpoo, provided it could be shown that the vessels for which such a wharf would be intended would be willing and able to make use of it. On the other hand, we did not approve of the proposal to provide 2,500 feet of berthing accommodation at the public's expense.

"We voted against the imposition of a transshipment tax and of a further tonnage due and approved of the proposed conservancy tax provided that the present revenues of the Whangpoo Conservancy Board are insufficient. In regard to the constitution of the proposed Harbor Board, we recommended that it should consist of the following:

"Officials: The Commissioner of Foreign Affairs, the Commissioner of Customs, the Engineer of the Whangpoo Conservancy Board, the Harbor Master.

"Commercial: Two representatives to be appointed by the International and the French Municipal Councils, one of each Council, four representatives appointed by the National Chambers of Commerce of the four nations with the biggest shipping tonnage.

HARD TIMES AHEAD

"We have, if I am not mistaken, by no means an easy time in front of us. On the one hand, as I indicated at the beginning of my speech, we are likely to find the rights-recovery movement of Chinese growing stronger and stronger; on the other we are pretty certain to be faced with increasing competition.

"We wish to be just to the Chinese and to help them in the prosecution of their legitimate aims; we have no wish, on the other hand, to exclude new competition from this market. We have, however, to be just to ourselves and to look after our individual and our individual and our common interests. We shall want, therefore, all the help that home Chambers of Commerce can give us. To get the best out of such help, however, we need to close up our ranks here and accordingly I appeal to all to do their utmost to maintain and render still more compact and reliable the unity and solidarity that seven years of work have achieved. Also I would like to appeal to all members to help the Chamber when it initiates co-operative movements, such as our scheme for the support of British schools and hospitals in China. On this subject I have asked Mr. Cooper, Chairman of the Associated Chambers Schools and Hospitals Committee, to address you later this afternoon.

THE PRINCE'S VISIT

"I must not conclude my review of the past year without making reference to my visit to Hongkong as the Associated Chambers' representative to meet the Prince of Wales in the Crown Colony, an honor which I highly appreciated. It was a historic event, and the charm of the Prince's personality which has been so freely commented on in every country he has visited, was made fully manifest at every public function at which he appeared. He received a right Royal welcome from both the for-sign and Chinese communities and Sir Edward Pearce and I were told he regretted being unable to visit Shanghai, about which he had heard much, and I take this first public opportunity to do so."

The Chairman then proceeded to deal with the details of the Chamber's finances and with the activities of the Chamber's Language School, paying a tribute to the work done during the absence of Mr. Grant in England by Mr. Evan Morgan and Mr. J. M. Britto. He referred also to the decision to initiate an advanced course designed to familiarise students with documentary Chinese, more especially character, stating that applications to make use of this course had been received.

Mr. J. S. S. Cooper, chairman of the Association of Chambers of Commerce Committee for the support of British Schools and Hospitals, then addressed the meeting and explained the origin and purpose of the fund and appealed to the members of the Chamber for support.

Following Mr. Cooper's address announcement was made by the chairman of the election of the committee for the ensuing year and the meeting then adjourned.

FINE ART WORKS ON DISPLAY AT B. W. A. ROOMS

A really notable art exhibition is being offered to their members and friends through the initiative of the Art Section of the British Women's Association. The showing of pictures which opened yesterday at 9 Kiukiang Road will continue today and tomorrow and should elicit the serious attention of all who are interested in art.

By a kindly intervention of the Fates, Juel Madsen, artist-correspondent of the London Graphic, is in Shanghai on his way round the world and is exhibiting a collection of his paintings. Mr. Madsen was with General Wrangel's army as war correspondent through the Spring and Summer of 1920, travelling through the Crimea and Ukraine, afterwards going to Egypt, thence to India, where he spent a year, and is now in China which he intends to see thoroughly before returning to England via America.

The body of Mr. Madsen's work consists of spirited charcoal sketches of dramatic scenes caught on his travels. The vigor and vitality of movement which they express is marvellous and he conveys the feeling tone of the incidents he illustrates with poignancy of feeling. Russian soldiers kneeling in prayer before battle, kissing the cross held by the priest before going into action, watching the shelling of a town, guarding a railroad bridge—officers and privates in varied incidents of army life, or Russian families crowded into topushkas—the box cars which were almost the only means of travel—all are drawn with a sincerity and simplicity which appeal at once to the onlooker. The streets of Constantinople, Stamboul Bridge, with Galata Tower in the background, and soldiers in Egypt are other subjects sure to win a response.

Mr. Madsen's most imposing work is his "Blind Man Feeling the Spring," a large oil painting hung in the Committee Room at the B. W. A. Headquarters, which in its quiet restraint of coloring and sympathetic rendering of the sightless man sensing the Spring which is just beginning to touch the bare landscape is masterly.

LOCAL ARTISTS EXHIBIT

An important feature of the showing is Mrs. Ronald Macleod's collection of water colors and a portrait in oils of Zung-mai, daughter of Mr. Zee Hai-doo, a vivid bit of coloring which fully expresses the rich-tinted Orient. Grouped together are the same artist's portraits of Mrs. Girardet, Mrs. Hugo Reis, and Mrs. Broadwood, all so instinct with life and personality that one visitor was heard to exclaim "This is no picture of Mrs. Broadwood, it is she in person!" Water colors of the city wall of Wushu and the canal life, a garden in the Native City at Shanghai and an old temple on Taihu Lake reproduce with rare understanding the charm and poetry of the teeming life of China against its picturesque architecture.

Mrs. Macleod's work is marked by a force and sustained effectiveness which is unusual. No details clog the drawing, her color masses are always true and there is a directness of treatment which makes an immediate appeal.

Miss Lucille Douglass, an American artist who has exhibited in New York and the Southern States but never before in Shanghai, contributes two pastels to this showing, one a "Tree Portrait" as she has named it which expresses not only the character of the noble tree she has painted but also exemplifies the peace and calm of a Chinese landscape. The coloring of this composition is very quiet-toned, forming an effective contrast to her other pastel, a portrait of a Chinese actor which in its bold treatment brings out the passion and fervor always present in the Orient, though often unnoticed by those who do not know the East.

Mr. A. J. Billingham, A.R.A., brother of Dr. Billingham, is showing some Venetian scenes which evince a master's handling of color and light, joined with artistic discrimination. Mr. Ronald Macleod has two charcoal drawings, one a head of Little Miss Rose-Marie Meyer which has caught the innocence of childhood and conveys it very tellingly. His night scene showing the lights of the Navy at Weihaiwei is a striking composition in the Whistlerian manner.

ENGLISH SCENERY

Richard Frazier, for twenty years headmaster of the Manchester School of Art, is represented by a large number of delightful water colors representing various aspects of English scenery. Mrs. Roberts phrases China in her comprehending pictures of river life. Mde. Helene Ulrich specialises in flower paintings, having caught the clematis in the nursery of the British Flower Shop in answer to a hurry call to "come and preserve their fleeting loveliness." Mrs. V. Meyer shows a spirited pencil sketch, Mr. Seldon a stunning pastel in red, Mr. Reece a portrait head in strong black and white, Mr. Standish represents California in oils, Kalmakoff paints India, and Quinell exhibits his portrait of Field Marshall Allenby.

Zimbalist Enchants

Zimbalist, one of the world's four greatest violinists.

His instrument, one of the three most remarkable violins in existence.

His accompanist, Gregory Ashman, thoroughly in sympathy—a true artist to accompany the master.

This was the combination that made a memorable program at the Town Hall last night, the same hall that less than a year ago heard the wonderful Mischa Elman, another of the world's four greatest, play.

It was the popular idea last night to compare the two—but they are not to be compared. Both are mighty artists in their line. Both are finished violinists, with perfect technique, facility and adaptability of expression, and complete knowledge of the music they render.

But Zimbalist, as heard at last night's concert, is more "enjoyable." Elman is spectacular, acrobatic perhaps; Zimbalist is calm, unperturbed, quiet—some even said last night that he was cold. Zimbalist is the "easier" on his audience.

Zimbalist played a varied program of numbers more or less well known. He did not accede to the popular cry so often heard here or the so-called "difficult" concertos of Glazounov or Tchaikowsky, an idea which is wrong, however, for all music is the same to the true artist not "difficult," nor "easy."

He opened with Correll's Folies d'Espagne and followed with a Paganini Concerto. He had played but a few bars of his opening number when the audience understood that he was using a remarkable instrument, the quality of tone of which has never been heard here. The violin itself is a remarkable producer of sound as a mere instrument to express what the artist desires to impart. And Zimbalist handled it masterfully.

Zimbalist and his wonder violin reached the greatest heights in Leopold Auer's arrangement of Tchaikowsky's Andante Cantabile, played with the mute. It will be recalled that Zimbalist (as is Elman) is a product of the Auer school.

The Hungarian Dance in E, also played with the mute, was another notable number, following the Hungarian Dance in D. The closing number, a Fantasia from Carmen, nearly brought the audience to its feet.

Bethoven's Romance in G and the Tambourine Chinoise, Kreisler, were other delightful numbers and the encore at the end of the first part (Drala's Waltz Eluett) was a splendid number.

His other encores were d'Ambrose's serenade and "Elincelles."

Zimbalist will play again on Saturday night when another excellent program is announced, to include Handel's Sonata in E, three movements of the Mendelssohn concerto, two bits of Sarasate, Hayden's Vivace (as arranged by Auer) and a Faust Fantasia. He will also play Rameau's Musette.

A bigger house should greet Zimbalist than was present last night although about 500 were present despite the rain.

A sparkling Comedy by

JEROME K. JEROME

She dressed in arty-looking clothes which she said were "futuristic." She was the most rampant type of "new women." She just simply loathed men, the great, horrid brutes. She pitied any poor woman who was silly enough to fall in love with one of the odious creatures. And then—She fell in love with a fake piano-tuner. He didn't know a G-string from a pedal, but he did not know enough about a woman's heart to bring harmony out of all the discords. THROUGH SERVICE TO EUROPE BEGINS WITH RUSSIA TRIP

Canadian Pacific Liner Takes Many Prominent Passengers From Shanghai Saturday

Taking 140 passengers from Shanghai, including many of prominence, the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Russia will sail from Woosung tomorrow night.

This sailing of the Empress of Russia will inaugurate the Canadian Pacific's new fast through service to Europe, passengers by this ship connecting with the company's Empress of France, which sails from Quebec on May 16 for Cherbourg, Southampton and Hamburg.

The Empress is carrying many prominent and well-known passengers from China on this trip for Europe. Among them are Sir Reginald Gamble, of the Salt Revenue Inspectorate; General Sir Alfred Knox, who was chief of the British Expeditionary Forces in Siberia, and Lady Knox; the Baroness de Giffert, of Peking; Mrs. C. R. Morling, of Tientsin; Mrs. R. S. F. McBain, Mr. Eric M. Ross, Mr. and Mrs. William Fox and family; Mr. A. J. H. Carrill, director of Dodwell and Company; Mr. and Mrs. C. Richard, of Chefoo; Dr. S. W. Pratt, Mr. E. S. B. Rowe, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ward and Miss Eleanor Cox.

Among the passengers leaving for America are Mr. E. Gordon Low, retiring Commissioner of Customs; Mrs. and Miss Low; Mr. A. J. Hayim, Mrs. A. D. Abraham and family, Mr. F. R. Pratt, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Barrows and family, and Mr. and Mrs. E. Kilner.

Chita Delegation Blames Japanese For Dairen Failure

(Dalla News Agency)

Chita, April 18.—The Delegation of the Far Eastern Republic left Dairen on April 16 after negotiations were broken on the Japanese Government's initiative. Moderate elements were ready to come to an understanding with Russia, but they were defeated by the military party. On March 13 an agreement was reached between the delegations on all points of the general trade convention but when the military agreement was discussed the Japanese delegation offered a formula the acceptance of which would afford the possibility for Japanese to continue the intervention for an indefinite time.

Moreover the Japanese delegation presented new demands on such points which have been settled before. Unexpectedly for the Far Eastern Republic the Japanese Delegation formulated a demand for non-increase of the present tonnage of the fleet of the Far Eastern Republic, insisting upon acceptance of this demand. The Delegation of the Far Eastern Republic replied that maximum concessions already had been given and that the delegation could not agree with the settlement of the question of evacuation and will not accept new demands of the Japanese military representatives. The categorical statement of the Japanese Delegation insisted on a reply within 24 hours.

On April 17 Mr. Matsushima, chairman of the Japanese delegation, received a telegram from Tokio instructing him to break the negotiations and proceed to Tokyo. The policy of the Japanese Government striving for full occupation of the Russian Far Eastern territories led to the break of the negotiations, thus getting rid of the agreement of the points of which were mutually accepted. Bidding farewell Mr. Matsushima stated that the peaceful relations between Japan and the Far Eastern Republic would be continued and that the Japanese troops would remain on Russian territory where they now were and that they wouldn't move out of the neutral zone.

Mr. Petroff, the chairman of the Russian Delegation, replied that the troops of the Far Eastern Republic would avoid any clash with the Japanese troops and that the Government of the Far Eastern Republic would not abandon its intention to pursue the Russian rebels towards the southern part of the Maritime Province.

THE CHINA INDUSTRIAL LABORATORY
41 Kiangse Road, Shanghai

Exploration And Development Co.

Mr. R. S. F. McBain, presiding at the annual meeting of the Shanghai Exploration and Development Co., today, said:

"The report and accounts have been in your hands for some time and I will, with your permission, take them as read. I will however read you the auditors' report."

"You will have noticed from the accounts that we are nearing the end of our funds, but I do not think there is any need for you to be anxious as the engineer in charge at Mentoukou assures us that he can reach coal in about three months from now and that in about six weeks from the date of reaching coal he expects to draw 500 tons daily. Negotiations are now proceeding with the Railway and other officials with regard to the construction of a Branch Line of about 2 miles from the Mine to the Mentoukou station which is the terminus of a branch of the Peking-Kalgan Railway, distant about 16 miles from Peking."

"The agreement will include guarantees to carry our coal from the Mine to Peking at a rate that has yet to be agreed upon. If any funds are required for this purpose your Directors feel satisfied that they can make the necessary arrangements. In the beginning we may have to work without this branch line and the cost of transportation will be higher but we did not think it advisable to commit ourselves too far with regard to this matter until we were convinced that coal was well in sight, and in considerable quantities."

"A large sum of money has been spent during the last two years on the Mentoukou coal field but I think that results justify the expenditure. The Mine is equipped with up-to-date electrical pumping plant and is in a position to produce and handle the coal, when reached, with very small additional expenditure."

"I do not propose to weary you with details of the working during the past year as I do not think these interest you. I feel that you want results, and I think that there are practically assured in the near future, as our Engineer is quite certain of his data. Owing to the fact that we are comparatively close to Peking we shall eventually be able to lay down our coal in that market at a cost considerably under the present market value of a similar coal. You will be pleased to learn that the quality of our coal is better than our engineer originally anticipated, being less broken than it was reported to be; and therefore we anticipate no difficulty in finding a ready sale for it."

"Our engineer has informed us that, at a conservative estimate, he considers we have a minimum of 25,000,000 tons of coal at Mentoukou—this is 8,000,000 tons more than previously estimated and the

The War In The North

BY JOSEF W. HALL

CHANG Tso-lin, by stealing Wu Pei-fu's thunder, believes that he has at last found a method of forcing upon Wu Pei-fu the responsibility for precipitation of the actual conflict. For the past two years Wu has proclaimed that the purpose of his military strength is to protect the people's national constitutional convention which, at the opportune moment, he has hoped to summon. Chang Tso-lin now announces the impending convocation under his auspices of a reunification conference in Tientsin—not of the "people" but of political and military factional heads; and states that he is massing troops about Tientsin for the protection of and crushing of the "obstacle" to that conference.

Obviously a convention in Tientsin, which is safeguarded by the Protocol from the invasion of Chinese troops, needs no army for its protection, and in this respect Chang's excuse is hardly good enough to pass muster, but if his planned "protection" be an active rather than passive nature; that is, if it involve the intent to compel Wu Pei-fu to come into the conference or fight, it is material enough. Because of this aspect the conference is the lever which, with one alternative, must compel Wu to take the military offensive. He can hardly sit quietly by and see Chang organize a government at Tientsin which will provide place neither for his ambitions nor ideals and which would ask him to lay down his military power or become a declared outlaw. Nor could he come into a conference controlled by Chang Tso-lin which would relegate him to an inconsequential position.

The alternative is a policy which rests upon the likelihood that Chang's scheme, even though opposed by open force, would rapidly degenerate into a farce. Weaknesses enough exist in the plan to gather together ex-friends and ex-enemies of every stripe and faction from the monarchist Chang Hsun and the traitorous Anfu to the alleged democratic protagonist C. C. Wu and the revolutionist Sun Yat-sen for (from the standpoint of the prime mover, Chang Tso-lin) the fulfillment of Chang's ambitions, to bring that plan into impotence and contempt without opposition from the outside. Unless endangered from the military standpoint it would seem that Wu could afford to sit tight and see Chang turned upon by his present incongruous allies, even though he should first have established himself after the mode of Yuan Shih-k'ai in the capital itself.

Apparently, Chang has got about as far as he can go in his military threat against Wu Pei-fu. His maneuvers thus far appear to be anything but sound strategy. They have resulted in throwing the Tsoo faction completely into the arms of Wu Pei-fu. The triumvirate has, as predicted, at last definitely come to its end, with the absorption by General Wu of the resources of the weak triumvir. Chang Tso-lin, instead of enlisting the chieftains south of the wall through his military presence among them, is alienating them all along the line. His plan to use Chow-Ti as his assistant within Wu's camp has resulted in the extension of Wu's command over the Honan provincial army and the complete consolidation of Wu's position.

Tien Chung-yu of Shantung, whom he fully believed was "his man," shows himself less warm toward the Fengtien chief's cause in proportion to the encroachment of the Fengtien armies upon his domain. Tien has executed a coup by taking over, upon the withdrawal of the Chihli troops, the Tehchow arsenal which Chang fully believed was as good as his. The cool attitude of the Shantungese toward the Mukden invasion has given a sudden check to the progress of Chang's troops down the Tientsin-Pukow Railway. And it appears that the conclusion that that line had become Chang Tso-lin's was drawn altogether too hastily, for the latest reports tell us that Wu Pei-fu's war-scarred veterans under Chang Fui-lai which have been coming northward from Yochow, Hunan, have diverted from the Peking-Hankow Railway at Chengchow and crossed over to the Pukow line at Hanchowfu, from whence they will proceed northward into Shantung and provide a most effective stiffening to Tuchen Tien in his attitude toward the Mukden encroachment.

On the Peking-Hankow line, Wu is establishing a strong position between Chocho and Changhsien from fifteen to thirty miles south of Peking, upon the scene of his historic victory over the Anfu two years ago. Wu and his men know every inch of this ground and it is doubtful if Chang has a commander-doughty enough to attack him here. From Changhsien he can reach Fengtai, by the fifteen-mile long cross railway, with ease, and at that point cut the Peking-Mukden line just south of Peking. As long as Wu holds his position, and it appears impossible that he can be dislodged from it, he will maintain an effective offset to Chang's forces north of Peking, regardless of their number, and Peking, garrisoned by the gendarmes, President's troops and Yi-chun, will discreetly remain neutral. So Wu has nothing to fear here. And by letting Chang Tso-lin come down the Mukden-Pukow route as far as the border of Shantung he has got him in the neck of a bottle formed by the Peking-Hankow line, the Changchow-Hanchowfu cross line and the sea.

Added to this let it be remembered that Chang Tso-lin is operating five-hundred miles from his base (while Wu Pei-fu is on home ground) and that, being no soldier himself, he must trust entirely upon the field leadership of commanders whose loyalty under reverses is by no means assured. Again, and this is no small item, his troops have never been tested in battle, while those of Wu Pei-fu possess the self-confidence of successive victorious campaigns. Recently I visited several of the Fengtien customhouses between Peking and Shangkaiwan and talked with the men. All had a wholesome respect for the reputation of Wu's veterans and expressed the earnest desire that they would never be compelled to meet them in battle, while their faith in their "Great Commander Chang" ("Chang Ta Swai") was limited to the belief that he is good enough politician to obviate the necessity for any such unpleasant contingency.

As to the comparative resources of the rivals, let it be said that Chang has silver (reputedly twenty-five million dollars worth) and his soldiers are paid. He has accumulated, owing to his possession of funds and proximity to Japan and Siberia, more and better guns, munitions and equipment than Wu Pei-fu's army has ever dreamed of using. He has employed the services of two West Point graduates and several graduates from the Curtis school of aviation (all Chinese), yet he places this modern equipment and trained-to-the-minute talent under the medieval drill-master Chang Hsun, and the command of arm-chair generals of the defeated Anfu regime. Being, it would seem, quite deficient in military judgment, he is endeavoring to supply this lack by indiscriminately reaching out for leadership to the old school and the new. The incongruous placing of Lewis-gun regiments under the command of hoary braves who made their mark in cross-bow warfare may reduce all Chang's fine equipment, wireless telephones and telegraphs, and whatnot, to so much deadly impedimenta before the onslaught of a commander who directs his own battle in the light of the knowledge of the material with which he has to work.

These are the present military positions of the two rivals. As much as he might like to show some grounds of hope to the Chang Tso-lin worshippers in Mukden who tell correspondents: "Now General Chang has been very nice to you—you must not say anything that isn't nice about him when you go away," the observer is compelled to say that, from the military standpoint, the little Mukden satrap would seem well advised to confine himself to politics.

In the light of what Tsoo An, in far off Yunan, did to Yuan Shih-k'ai, the consideration of the possibilities of what Wu Pei-fu in Chihli, may do to Chang Tso-lin strengthens the conviction that the path of the "strong man" in China leads to the precipice.

Japanese Will Fail In Siberia

Military Review

By Lt. Col. B. BOUSTAM BEK
(Military Attache of the Chite Government stationed at Peking)

Viscount Ishihara in answer to the protest of Mr. Chicherin against the presence of Japan at the Genoa Conference on April 11, because she occupied a portion of Siberia, ironically remarked that "Japan is, in fact, staying there but what about Siberia?"

Certainly Viscount Ishihara could easily use these words in Genoa, being amongst his friends. As a matter of fact, Japan is in Genoa and stays there but what about Siberia?

In order to answer that question I have to refer to the past. There exist an opinion among the general public that the Russian army was defeated by the Japanese in Manchuria in 1905 and therefore Japan can defeat first the People's Revolutionary Army of the Far Eastern Republic and then the Soviet army also. Such an opinion is entirely wrong.

First of all, during the Russo-Japanese War, the Russian army suffered only a series of tactical reverses and lost her fleet which did not change her strategic situation on land. Japan is a naval power and she won the war on the sea.

The Russian fleet in 1905 scarcely assisted the army and in many cases abused it, as it was, for instance, in Port Arthur. After the retreat from Mukden, the Russian Army occupied the Hsi-Ping-kai positions, its number was not diminished but doubled and about 1,000,000 men were ready for an advance, while Japan was exhausted and sent to the field her last reserves. Any one of the Russians who was prisoner of war in Japan knew perfectly well that the last reserves were spent already for the siege of Port Arthur. The Japanese had at their disposal 1,200,000 men in all, while Russia did not touch even one third of her military force. After a year of fighting the Russians were still in Manchuria and never retreated behind Harbin, while the original idea of Kuropatkin was to entice the enemy as far as possible in Siberia and annihilate him.

All the prominent military experts of the world agree that the peace was a real misfortune for the Russian armies, which could have fought on to victory. The inner conditions in Russia were greatly exaggerated and had the revolution triumphed in those days the army would have fought its enemy perhaps with a higher spirit.

In 1905 the important military leaders of the Japanese army considered also that it would be a foolish thing for the Japanese to go into Siberia. Several of them knew Russia. All of them expressed the idea that a free Russia would be the best neighbor for Japan.

I remember the sensational message issued by the Associated Press of November 28, 1919 in which it was said that Japan is planning a campaign in Siberia "on a great scale" and that America will be asked to give substantial support for the drive against the Bolsheviks. I did not hesitate to declare in the American press about this absolute absurdity of such an idea. I firmly stated that America will withdraw her military forces from Siberia and that Japan, single-handedly, can never realize her dream. More than that, I went even further in discussing the possible combinations of Japan with certain powers to attack Soviet Russia in Siberia and I explained to the American public the impossibility of such an adventure. I was listened to and many prominent military critics agreed with me entirely. Now in the case of the "campaign on a great scale" in Siberia which has to be waged by Japan alone, or in coalition with a certain power the strategic situation will be in favor of the Russians. Their strategic aim will remain the same as it was during the whole period of the armed intervention and Civil War—namely, annihilation of the invaders, and the strategy of the Soviet—will be purely defensive. The invaders cannot concentrate on the decisive point an army numerically superior to that of the Russians. Besides other difficulties, the concentration of their armies will meet a great danger, thanks to Siberia's lack of sufficiently developed railroads and roads in general and thanks to the special climatic conditions existing in that part of the Soviet Republic.

If Japanese would be obliged to meet the Red Army somewhere east of Lake Baikal, they would have to protect the railway lines, extending several thousand miles, and they will also have in their rear, the Russian population which would be harmless only in case of complete annihilation, which is an impossibility, but would otherwise be most hostile. They will have also in their rear and flank the Chinese who as it is well known changed their feeling towards Japan and Russia since 1905. They have to reckon with Korea also.

From the military standpoint, the problems of the Red Russian Army, in case of a military conflict with Japan, will be less complicated now than were the problems of Kuropatkin in 1904.

In order to protect the long shores of the Kwantung peninsula and to oppose the landing of the Japanese army, as well as to protect Vladivostok and support Port Arthur, which even against his will he was ordered to release, and therefore started an offensive before his army was fully concentrated, he had to utilize very great forces. Now Vladivostok is in the hands of the enemies of Russia and there is neither Port Arthur nor the navy to spoil the game; the only objective for the Red Army in the present instance would be the living force of the enemy.

In pre-revolutionary Russia the military organization was based on old traditions, existing in a purely imperialistic state. The discipline was rather of Prussian character, unconscientious and stupid. The officers, though well trained, were deprived of initiative, being too far away to understand the psychology of their men. Politically they were the blind tools of their superiors. The generals and the high command were extremely weak and narrow-minded. In short, the old Russian army was led by good soldiers but not by skillful Captains. There was jealousy, corruption and other mischief in the rank and file of the Czar's army. There was none whatsoever of any popular idea to raise the fighting spirit of the troops. Therefore, there was no chance to win the war.

We also cannot overlook the fact that in 1904 while engaged with Japan in a modern war, the Russian army did not have any military experience since 1877, while the Japanese in 1896 won the war with China.

Now all is entirely changed. The Russian military organization is absolutely new and unknown to any power in the world though the fighting traditions of Russian soldiers remain old, they have greatly improved with newly introduced ideas of the revolutionary character in the souls of Red soldiers. The discipline is conscientious and more complete than it was in the old days. The commanding element, while enjoying very great prerogatives of power over their subordinates, is closely connected with the latter in private life as well as in the field while out of duty. The high command in the Red army is composed of young, highly educated and experienced leaders who could be considered as perfect Captains. I saw many of the division commanders below thirty years of age. The young Red officers are well trained, highly educated from the general point of view, politically and economically. This is very important nowadays. There is absolutely not the slightest jealousy in the rank and file of the Red army, and there is no trace of former corruptions. The idea of war, if such be as a fact, would be very popular throughout Russia. The Russian people know well that they have to defend their land and the Revolution. There can be neither strikes nor mutiny in Soviet Russia. Nobody strikes against himself. There is now a double track railway, which did not exist in Siberia in 1904.

The description in regard to Japan would be entirely different. If the Red army is their real objective as they often indicated, the whole project would depend on the Soviet Army; but in no case could the invaders afford to attempt a decisive battle in one place or other in the vast country. Assuming that it would happen somewhere even west of Irkutsk, the invaders never would be able to concentrate a numerically preponderant army and would be partially beaten during the period of concentration. If it should happen somewhere in the Far East, the day will come when the Russians will be stronger than their enemy. In order that the public may understand this, I have to describe the new military strength of the Russian Soviet Republic in a special article later on.

In conclusion, I have to draw the attention of my readers to the fact that the Russian Red army and their leaders have already had practical experience in modern warfare since 1914, and this the Japanese have not.

Let the Japanese at least understand that the Soviet army is the Russian nation in arms, led by the finest and most experienced leaders.

Bute Plantations (1913) Meeting

The annual general meeting of The Bute Plantations (1913) Limited, was held yesterday afternoon at the offices of the general managers, Messrs. A. R. Burkill and Sons.

The following is the address delivered by the chairman:

"Gentlemen: The report and accounts having been in your hands for some time, I will, with your permission, take them as read."

"Dealing first with the report, the progress made during the year under review may, I think, be regarded as very satisfactory."

"A slight addition has been made in the planted area since the last report, an area of three acres having been planted up in order to square off the boundaries."

"Although a 25 percent restriction was partially in force during November and December, the output of dry rubber exceeded the estimate by 5,410 lbs. I regret to say that the average price realised from the sale of our crop was decidedly poor but not worse than the price received by other Estates. The average price received was 7.88d. against 1-7/8 for the previous year."

"Costs show a very great improvement on all previous figures. The 'all-in' cost of production for the year under review was 10.75d. against 1-5/8 for the previous year, a reduction of 7d. per pound. In this connection, it is satisfactory to report that efficiency has not suffered in any way by the drastic reorganisation of expenditure adopted to meet the present depression."

"The Estate was weeded monthly, the cost being 39 cts. per acre per month against 78 cts. for the previous year and $1.09 for the year before that."

"As regards diseases, there is nothing to report, the Estate at the present moment being particularly free from diseases. Elephants made their appearance on the Estate on two occasions but fortunately did no damage. Tigers have not interfered with the work but as they are still common in the neighbourhood, it has not been possible to dispense with the patrol."

"Turning to the accounts, the loss on the year's working amounted to Tls. 14,331.17 from which must be deducted the amount of Tls. 2,915.15 brought forward from last year's accounts, leaving a balance of Tls. 11,416.02, which will be carried forward to next year's accounts. The loss on the year's working was practically covered by the outstanding balance of S. 327,650 received from the sale of the outlying block which was sold last year."

"The amount of Tls. 12,600.52 appearing under the heading of Sundry Creditors represents interest on loans, directors' fees for two years and sundry creditors at Estate and Reserve, for leave pay and passage. With regard to the Directors' Fees, the amount outstanding at the end of the year was Tls. 6,000. In view of the present financial position of the Company, the Directors have voluntarily agreed to accept half fees. This will mean a saving of Tls. 3,000 to the Company and will appear to the credit of profit and loss account in next year's accounts."

"A forward sale of 2 tons monthly for the whole of 1922 at a price of 42 cents per pound has been made."

"That is all I have to say gentlemen. If any shareholder has any questions to ask, I shall be pleased to answer to the best of my ability."

The following resolutions were then passed: That the report and accounts for the year ended 31st December, 1921 together with the recommendation as to appropriation of balance at debit of profit and loss account as presented be accepted.

That the appointment of Mr. C. R. Burkill as a Director of the Company be confirmed.

That Mr. E. T. Byrne be re-elected a director of the Company.

That Messrs. G. H. & N. Thomson be re-elected Auditors to the Company.

Semambu Rubber Estates Annual Meeting

The ninth annual meeting of the Semambu Rubber Estates Ltd., was held yesterday afternoon at the offices of the general managers, Messrs. R. N. Truman and Company, 103 Szechuen Road.

The chairman's speech follows: "Gentlemen, Before proceeding with the business of this meeting, on behalf of the Board, I wish to express our profound regret at the untimely death last December of our late manager, Mr. Gerald Shillito. This gentleman had faithfully served the Company over a period of nine years and was wholeheartedly devoted to its interests. In him we lost both a good manager and a good friend and I know you will join with me in an expression of deepest sympathy to his wife and son who are now in England."

"The report and accounts have been in your hands for some days and with your permission I will take them as read."

"With regard to Estate matters, no further areas were planted during the year. The planted area is now given as 930 acres against 940 acres previously, the difference of 10 acres being accounted for by an error in reading the figures of the last survey. Thus the planted area is reduced and the reserve increased by 10 acres."

"Statistical figures as previously published are now discontinued as restriction of output and alternate day tapping render them no longer a reliable means of comparison. I am of opinion, however, that the report contains all the information requisite."

"The necessity for curtailment of output is reflected in the low prices now being obtained for rubber. I am glad to say this Company has done its fair share towards helping to stabilise the market by reduction of crop, but until all producing countries come into line on this question and pending a revival of the world's trade in general, I have not much hope of seeing a profitable basis reached, for undoubtedly present production exceeds present consumption. One remedy we have in our own hands, that is to produce less than we would under better conditions. The other and main remedy, improvement in the world's trade, we can only hope to take place quickly. Nevertheless, one cheering point I might mention is that estates are not accumulating stocks and are able to sell at a price all they are producing."

"Our cost of production shows a reduction of 3d. on 1920, which is gratifying, and due to the great efforts of the manager and all concerned. We hope to do still better for this year."

"The estate is reported as in good condition, despite the numerous economies effected, which is satisfactory."

"Sales of rubber realised an average price of 9.04 pence as against 23.29 pence in 1920, resulting in a loss of Tls. 8,098.48 as shown in the working account. As a setoff, however, against this, we have the items of interest earned Tals 4,364.48 and profit on exchange Tals 22,404.89, thus after deducting this loss and local expenses, the profit for the year is Tals 12,288.03. I want to make it quite clear that this profit is not due to the working of the Estate, but has accrued from interest and exchange alone."

"For delivery during current year, we have sold 24 tons at 42 cents, which will help to average up on the low prices now ruling."

"Turning to the balance sheet, you will see that the only expenditure on capital account was Tls 5503.85 for maintenance and development of immature areas, and Tals 511.04 for the erection of 5 coolie huts. Buildings, plant and machinery have been written down to vanishing point. We finish the year in an exceptionally strong position as regards liquid resources and we can look with confidence to the fact that this Company will be able to stand a lot more stormy weather and still win through to the better times that are surely ahead of us."

"Despite this strong position, the Directors do not feel justified in recommending any distribution of profits for last year. We do not know what is ahead of us, thus our first care is the safety and well being of the Company, but when good times come again, we shall not be chary of recommending a return to shareholders for which they have so long and so patiently waited."

"Meantime, however, and whilst we are able, the Directors recommend that a beginning be made with a Reserve fund established for the specific purpose of tiding the estate over bad times in the future. As you are all aware, a rubber tree has a definite commercial life and when it ceases to be profitable, it must be cut out and a new tree planted. Thus, taking a long view of this and other purposes that may arise the Directors recommend that the sum of Tals 10,000 now standing at credit of Equalisation of Dividend account plus a further Tals 10,000 from the Profit and Loss account be placed on one side to be the nucleus of an Estate Emergency Fund, which I hope to see gradually built up till it equals say S. $100 to each acre planted. "The amount to be dealt with today after transfer of Tals 10,000
